

Nyaradzo Digital Legacy 101: Introduction

The passing of a loved one is a life changing event. The Nyaradzo Group family is here to help you manage a loved one's social media accounts. While social media accounts may not be the first priority after a loved one passes, they may certainly add to one's grief in the weeks and months following when one receives an unexpected Facebook or other social media reminders of birthdays, anniversaries etc.

You have the option of either deleting/removing a social media account, memorialising an account where this option is available, or taking no action at all.

In order to delete/remove or memorialise an account, you will need to complete an online request form where you will be asked to provide information to prove you are a direct family member or executor, details related to the deceased's account and proof of death.

In the coming Digital Legacy series, we will guide you through the process for the major digital platforms.
